
BACKGROUND ABOUT YOUR COUNTY ATTORNEY

A native of Sioux City, Iowa, David C. Solheim grew up in Norfolk, Nebraska, where he attended and graduated from Norfolk Senior High School. He received his undergraduate degree with double majors in economics and international studies from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) in 2008. While in college, Solheim was elected student body president and served on the Board of Regents for the University of Nebraska. He attended the University of Nebraska College of Law and, while in law school, served as the editor-in-chief of the Nebraska Law Review and participated in the Criminal Clinic, which is housed in the Lancaster County Attorney's Office. Solheim received his law degree, with highest distinction, in 2011. He then worked as an associate attorney for Baird Holm LLP, a general corporate litigation firm based in Omaha, Nebraska, before accepting a position as deputy county attorney in Washington County, Nebraska. The Hancock County Board of Supervisors appointed Solheim as Hancock County Attorney in 2013. He is admitted to practice law in both Iowa and Nebraska